

Central Police University Profile Video OS

Central Police University is the highest police academy in Taiwan, and strives to cultivate law enforcement personnel.

Central Police University's predecessor was the Central Police College, which was founded in 1936. After the expansion of the academic system, it was renamed as the Central Police University in 1995, and has since added master's and Ph.D. Programs.

The school has a motto of "Honesty," and a school tradition of "energetic action," the beliefs that the students and faculties have upheld for many decades. We maintain these principles, and keep up with the times to create a more perfect police academy.

The Central Police University consists of the College of Justice Administration and College of Police Science and Technology. The College of Justice Administration includes the Dept. of Administration Police, Dept. of Public Security, Dept. of Crime Prevention and Corrections, Dept. of Foreign Affairs Police, Dept. of Border Police, Dept. of Administrative Management, and Dept. of Law, and the College of Police Science and Technology consists of the Dept. of Criminal Investigation, Dept. of Fire Science, Dept. of Traffic Science, Dept. of Information Management, Dept. of Forensic Science, Dept. of Maritime Police, and Graduate School of Disaster Management.

In addition, we have established a General Education Center. We hope what students obtain here is not just police skills and police knowledge, but also includes a humane mindset.

In our professional police education, we hope that our students not only acquire academic knowledge, but also gain skills they can apply in practical situations. Our Forensics Building contains many professional facilities, and provides students with comprehensive training and hands-on experience, which can apply to what they have learned in their future police work.

We also believe that a strong and healthy body and physical skills training are also indispensable. All students must receive basic physical skills training in order to cope with a future challenges and toils in a hazardous working environment. We also have a variety of sports and fitness facilities and hold various physical skills competitions. Students can enjoy in this excellent environment with all types of physical activities.

To ensure that students can fully apply their professional learning into practice, our courses include simulation training in various scenarios. This training is intended to instill the response capabilities and handling methods in various cases and emergencies. We hope to enable students to act quickly and responsively in any situation. Also working within the group in the simulation training, students can develop skills in teamwork, communication, and coordination.

In order to further hone students' knowledge and skills, we regularly arrange summer internships for our students at the National Police Administration, National Fire Agency, Coast Guard Administration, National Immigration Agency, Agency of Corrections, and National Security Bureau.

During their internships, our students have opportunities to use various kinds of equipment and apparatus, as well as chances to get a feel for actual operations.

At the same time, our students are able to establish interpersonal bonds with other interns. Internships not only give students chances to familiarize themselves with the work environments they may encounter in the future, but also to strengthen the psychological qualities they will need in police work.

When they are not taking part in internships and high-intensity training, our students can relax in our library, which has a large collection. And apart from reading for pleasure, students can make full use of the library's audiovisual resources. The campus also has an activity center and study center providing students and instructors places for study and relaxation.

In order to promote police-related research and strengthen the spirit of international cooperation, our school has a world police museum, which displays and collects police artifacts and historical information. The museum also includes an exhibition area dedicated to the work of Dr. Henry Lee. We hope this will promote the academic and research development of forensics in Taiwan, and encourage students to gain a better understanding of Dr. Lee's contributions to the global development of forensic science.

Our school places great emphasis on personality education. In order to cope with the challenges in complex and changing working environment in the future, we incorporate the guidance of the Student Corps, mentors and the mental health center to provide students with a variety of assistance.

In addition, we also encourage students to pursue their personal interests through numerous clubs, including recreational, literary and artistic, fitness and sports. Students are able to find like-minded companions, and participate in club activities with great enthusiasm, which has given the campus more energy and vitality.

To cultivate good habits, our students are required to live in the campus to ~~all~~ receive proper life education. Every summer, we welcome a group of new students, and prepare them to join the big family of Central Police University. Everyone has different ideas and reasons for coming here, but all students have a common goal: to become law and order officers.

At the beginning, new students may arrive with a sense of ignorance, but as time passes, they acquire professional police knowledge and skills, also learn how to live independently, and become a leading officer.

At Central Police University, students not only maintain a high level of fitness and learn to apply book knowledge in practical circumstances, but even more importantly, learn to become outstanding talent to contribute to the nation and society.

While at school, students will encounter countless difficulties and challenges, but they will never have to face them alone. Your fellow students and instructors will always be there to the day you become a full-fledged upholder of law and order. Central Police University's mission is to train excellent law and order officers and to pave the road for students to become ~~into~~ the pillars of the nation.
